A WORTHY CANDIDATE.

The legal voters of the Commonwealth ask no higher tribute to the worth and character of Judge Williams than the following neat compliment paid him by the only daily Democratic paper of Western Pennsylvania the day following his nomination. It said:

"The nomination of the Hon. Henry W. Williams as a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court is a good one. He was the best man named before the Republican Convention, and possesses legal and moral qualifications for the responsible position to which he has been nominated. Both parties have now presented their candidates. An important duty has been faithfully discharged by the respective conventions. The campaign may now be conducted without personal aspersions, and decided upon the principles of the two great parties. This is as it should be. It is an auspicious sign of the times, and if the county conventions are equally fortunate in the selection of legislative candidates, there will be a stop put to the deplorable corruption at the seat of government under a new reign of honest men and conscientious legislators.—Pittsburgh Post, June 28th, 1867.

The Post, in referring to the above, on the 29th of August, was pleased to say

"We have nothing to take back or modify. Of Judge Williams' private or legal reputation we have nothing but words of praise, and however it may suit some pugnacious and heady politicians, we cannot bring ourselves to view personal assaults as either wise or politic."

MR. STEPHEN B. KINGSTON, who is well and favorably known in railroad circles, has been appointed successor to H. H. Houston, Esq., resigned, as General Freight Agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He has been connected with the Freight Department of the road since its organization, and brings with him into the position large experience. Mr. Houston, under whose administration of affairs the road has enjoyed such unequaled patronage and prosperity, was compelled to resign on account of ill health. He labored zealously in the discharge of the arduous duties of the position, and displayed executive ability of the highest order. We are glad that he has not entirely severed his connection with the Company, but will be identified with its affairs in the future.

IT IS announced that the President means to rest awhile. This signifies that he intends to wait until after the Pennsylvania and New York elections, and then, if the republicans shall be defeated he will defy or perhaps disperse Congress. Do the republicans perceive the magnitude and gravity of the issue? Will they see to it that the elections so result as not to give the President a popular endorsement?

THE President will show what he would do if he dared, by recommending the District Commanders to re-open the registration of voters. Putting the thing in that shape shows he is conscious of having no lawful authority in the premises; and that he advises the doing of a deed the commanding of which would furnish undeniable and just ground for his impeachment.

THE campaign was auspiciously opened in Philadelphia on Friday evening last by a monster mass meeting of Republican voters. Senators Cameron and Nye were present and delivered addresses. From the large attendance and general enthusiasm manifested in the proceedings, we can safely rely on Philadelphia doing her full share of duty at the approaching election.

THE Republicans of Philadelphia opened the activities of the campaign on Friday evening, by a grand mass meeting. Notwithstanding the growling about local nominations, which is no more than always prevails elsewhere, the Republican majority will show no diminution.

THE Post quotes, with evident satisfaction, our opinion of Mr. Woodward. We shall not attempt to dash its enjoyment by citing any old woman to prove that our deliberately expressed judgment is good for nothing. We freely allow the Post a monopoly of that shameful expedient.

THE FENIANS cannot harmonize. The Savage wing and the Roberts wing are both intent on freeing Ireland, but cannot agree how the desired result may best be accomplished. Until the slight difference between the two factions is reconciled servant girls and patriotic Irishmen should withhold their contributions.

THE Republican Common Council of Philadelphia have formally presented articles of impeachment against Assessor William J. Owens, a Republican office holder, for his alleged complicity in the murder of Lieutenant Colonel Riddle, a native of this city.

THE death of General Griffin, temporary commander of the Fifth Military District, Sheridan's, is announced as having taken place at Galveston, yesterday, from yellow fever. Gen. Frank Wheaton, of the same district, is down with the disease.

GEN. BEAUREGARD expresses the opinion that another civil war will be impossible in this country during the life-time of the present generation; and this is a just conclusion. No men talk of another war except some who kept out of the last one.

IF MR. SIMONTON cannot find any news in Europe better worth the cost of telegraphing than the results of horse-racing, the Associated Press ought to recall him at once, and commission a man of sense in his place.

THE arrival of Mrs. Yelverton of the great English divorce case notoriety is announced. She purposes to lecture on her wrongs, and other equally entertaining themes, during her stay in America.

THE Democrats, having beguiled President Johnson to his ruin, now protest they do not recognize him as belonging to them, and that they will not be held answerable for his conduct.

MR. STANTON denies that he had an understanding with General Grant to the effect that the latter was to take upon himself the duty of administering the War Department.

BOTH the temperance and the railroad men are dissatisfied with the Republican nominations in Minnesota, and threaten to combine to defeat them.

THE Republicans of Northumberland county have nominated A. R. Fiske for Assembly.

MEMPHIS no longer fears the yellow fever, and has abandoned quarantine precautions.

A MAN in Round Rock, Texas, slaughted a beef and found in it a genuine ten dollar gold piece. A farmer lost a purse containing fifteen dollars in gold while surveying on the prairies in the locality, and it is supposed that the steer swallowed the coin while chewing the purse. The money was lost several years ago.

VOLUME LXXXII.—NO. 213. PITTSBURGH, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1867. PRICE THREE CENTS.

An Extraordinary Forgery—The City Bank of New York Beat out of $75,000 on a Forged Check—The Swindler Traced to Saint County, Ill., and Captured by a Detective—A Neat Job.

An extensive case of forgery, one that scarcely has its equal in the criminal record of the country, has just been developed by detectives George Elder, of New York, and Sam Ellis, of Chicago. The City Bank of New York, on the 11th of July, cashed a check for $75,000, purporting to be signed by Commodore Vanderbilt. The individual who presented the check was at that time unknown to Messrs. Taylor & Co., proprietors of the bank, but certain circumstances subsequently brought to the surface fully identify him as one of the most adroit swindlers of modern times. Not until several days after the check had been cashed was it discovered to be a forgery, when immediate action was taken toward the apprehension of the guilty party. Detective Elder was employed by the proprietors of the bank to work up the case, and very creditably, in connection with the services of detective Ellis, afterward brought into requisition, did he fulfill the extremely difficult task imposed. A full description of the man who had received the money was provided, and the first step was taken.

The sketch of the personnel of the scamp led to the detection of Henry Livingston, whose aliases are Lewis, Matthews and De Peyster, and who is quite well known to the detective force of New York as an old and experienced hand at roguery. As a horse fancier of no little importance, he was also somewhat acquainted in sporting circles. It was ascertained that Livingston, with the $75,000, had taken a hasty departure for Buffalo, where, upon the arrival of the officer, it transpired that he had purchased several horses and had come to this city. Hither the officer promptly repaired, only to find that his game had once more slipped his grasp, having left the Brighton House here, where he had been stopping, and gone to Kane county, Ill., and where, it was reported, he had purchased a farm. Detective Sam Ellis was detailed by the Chief of Police of Chicago to aid in the prosecution of the task, and in company with Elder, he left for Blackberry station, Kane county. There the two officers learned that Livingston was luxuriating upon 1,000 acres of soil known as the Camp and Woodman farms, situated about five miles northwest from that point, and for which he had paid $25,000 cash. Upon the receipt of this encouraging news the officers hired a buggy and arrived at the farm at 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning last. Livingston was seen standing at a barn door, and Ellis approached him, and after a salutatory remark, which was illy received, calmly notified him of his business, and introduced him to Elder, of New York. The Governor's warrant for his arrest was shown him, and he was greatly agitated as he perused it.

Preparations were then made to close the matter by a decisive movement, and Elder went to Geneva with a $4,000 team; which Livingston possessed, in order to procure attachments upon the property. Ellis escorted the prisoner into the house, and accompanied him to his bed-room. Once inside the door, the scoundrel made a dash for a pistol, which he undoubtedly intended to use against the detective, but the latter was too active for him, and secured him before he could employ the weapon. The apartment was literally filled with weapons of all descriptions, and Ellis certainly ran a very great risk. The farm was well stocked with horses and cattle and every convenience imaginable.

In the afternoon, the trio, Elder, Ellis and Livingston, were met by a batch of eager lawyers at Blackberry Station, who hoped to liberate the forger by obtaining a writ of habeas corpus at Elgin, but they were outwitted, as the officers started with the equipage previously used, and arrived at Michigan City, Indiana, where Elder took a train for New York, having in his custody the fellow who had so neatly been captured. Ellis returned to Chicago and reported progress. It is said that the infamous rascal, Livingston, had introduced his wife as a daughter of Commodore Vanderbilt, while rusticating in Illinois, and that he spent money as if he had no limit to his wealth.

Murder of an Infant—The Head Crushed to a Jelly With a Stone—The Body Dragged Off and Concealed.

A terrible tragedy was enacted near Newcastle, Ky., on Thursday last. The victim of the cold-blooded affair was an innocent little babe of three years, child of Mr. William Graves, a well known and highly respected citizen of that county, and the destroyer was a negro servant girl who had been living in the family several years. On the day mentioned, while Mrs. Graves was attending to some domestic duties, the servant girl took the child from the house to a tobacco patch in the rear of the stable, and about one hundred and fifty yards from the house.

Here it appears, from her own confession, she made the child lay down on the ground, and, after crossing its hands on the breast and making it bid pa and ma good bye, the fiend seized a stone and crushed its head almost to a jelly. She then seized it by the ankle and dragged it over the stubble to some thick undergrowth, where it was concealed from human view. A few moments after this the mother missed the child, and ran out to search for it, but the girl denied knowing anything about the child, saying it must be in the house. The premises were thoroughly searched by the almost frantic mother, while every thought of spot about the place was examined by Mr. Graves and several neighbors, who joined in the search.

All efforts to induce the girl to tell the whereabouts of the child, proved of no avail. At last one gentleman, while searching, discovered her slipping away, and, after a sharp chase, she was caught, and by the most violent threats was induced to lead them to the spot where the murder had been committed. There, in the bushes, the child was found, and although it had been three hours since the commission of the deed, it gasped twice after being taken out. The back of the head was horribly battered, and the back was terribly lacerated, where it had been dragged over the stubble to the place of concealment.

The entire neighborhood were highly excited at the murder, and threats of lynching were freely uttered. However, better counsels prevailed, and the girl was arraigned in the Circuit Court for murder in the first degree. She was convicted by the jury of the crime as charged, but the judge had not passed sentence. It is thought that she will be hung.

It was developed on the trial that this was the third child she had killed—two white and one colored. The murder of the colored child occurred a short time ago, and the deed was done in such a manner that no one suspected at the time that a murder had been committed. The child had been held with its feet up, until a rush of blood to the head caused death to relieve it from its sufferings. The only cause assigned by the girl for the last murder was because she felt mad at her mistress, Mrs. Graves.

A FEW days ago an humble and industrious tailor, with a happy and cheerful wife and seven daughters, the oldest barely ten years of age, resided and pursued his avocation in New Orleans. Within a moment both husband and wife were stricken down with the yellow fever; the shop was closed, and the little ones seemed to run about uncared for by any one, and ignorant of the great affliction of their parents, who, side by side, rested in the dark room in the rear of the tailor shop. Several days passed, and on Friday the wife was relieved from her sufferings by the cold embrace of death. The body was quietly removed by a few friends, and the husband, in mental and physical agony, lingered till two o'clock Sunday morning, when he also died. The seven little ones, thus thrown upon the cold charity of the world, were taken in charge by the Hebrew Benevolent Society, the small stock of goods belonging to the deceased packed up and the store closed.

AN old resident of Jamestown, N. Y., reports that in 1806, when that town was first settled, the village common was cleared of stumps by fines imposed on those who got drunk. The penalty for getting drunk was to dig up a large stump, and for getting only tipsy, a smaller stump. The removal of every stump, in about two months, was the result.

Horrible Tragedy in Missouri—A Maniac Attempts Murder and is Shot Dead.

On Friday, near Fayette, Mo., there occurred a most singular and deplorable tragedy. A young man named George Wilson was shot and instantly killed by another named John A. Walden, under the following circumstances: Wilson, for some years, has lived on the farm of Mrs. Wilkerson, in the capacity of a "hand," or cropper, and, until lately, they seemed to have got on amicably. For some days previous to the difficulty, however, Wilson had manifested much dissatisfaction, in consequence of the fact that the Wilkersons wanted him to leave. In a conversation the day previous, with John Walden, he showed a certain disturbed condition of the mind, which, however, excited no alarm. Friday morning his mental aberration took a positive form, when, walking to Mrs. Wilkerson, he presented a loaded pistol to her head, and asked her how she would like to die. She pushed the weapon aside and with her children left the house and went to a neighbor's. The same day a young man named Waddy Thompson went toward the house to see what was going on, but before he got there he was suddenly confronted by Wilson with a loaded shot gun, who presented his weapon and ordered Thompson to halt. Thompson dodged behind a tree, when Wilson put down the weapon and told Thompson to come on, that he was only joking. Thompson finally got close to him and took the gun from him. Three young men—John and William Walden and Waddy Thompson—afterward concluded that they would go and secure Wilson, or at any rate arrange matters so that Mrs. Wilkerson should return home. The three (John Walden having a shot gun) proceeded to the house, and found the doors locked and Wilson inside, armed and menacing. They concluded that one should attract his attention to the front entrance, while two should force in the back door and rush in and secure Wilson before he could do any damage. Accordingly, Thompson proceeded to the front, and the two Waldens, breaking in the back door with a rail, rushed in, but it seems both of them fell over some chairs which Wilson had placed near the door, evidently for that purpose. Wilson, hearing the first noise, ran toward the Waldens, and presented his shot gun at William, who was prostrate on the floor, when John Walden, partially rising, discharged his shot gun at the madman Wilson, the contents entering his breast. He immediately let fall his gun, staggered forward a few steps, and crying, "Oh, John, you have killed me, but it's my fault!" fell to the floor and expired. Young Walden went directly to Fayette and delivered himself up to Justice Peyton, by whom he was the next day examined and discharged.

The circumstances is deeply deplored by all who know the parties, and by none more than by young Walden himself. Wilson is represented as an industrious, moral young man, and was respected in the neighborhood. All three of the young men were intimate friends, the farms on which they worked adjoining, and nothing whatever has occurred to disturb their friendly relations. The mental condition or madness of Wilson seems to be a mystery to all, he never before having manifested any disposition of insanity.

(From the Nashville (Tenn.) Press and Times.)

It may not be generally known that the ground on which the city of Nashville now stands was once the site of an ancient and populous town, yet such is supposed to be the fact. Some of the most interesting antiquities of our State are found along the lower course of Stone river, but a few miles from Nashville. A wide area of country there is covered thickly with thousands of graves of now forgotten people.

But a few days ago several gentlemen made some researches in this region, and found their labors richly rewarded by some striking discoveries. At a place known as Schell's Spring they found a mound of considerable height and perhaps forty feet in diameter, which proved, upon examination, to be nothing less than a vast mausoleum of the dead. The graves were found to be made of flat rocks, symmetrically joined together, and three tiers deep from the base of the mound to the apex. Bones were found in a remarkable state of preservation, together with pottery and shells. Very large ornaments have been dug out of this locality, made from shells found only in the Gulf of Mexico.

A gentleman of acknowledged skill and authority in antiquarian matters, who conducted the researches made a few years ago, estimated that the remains which they unearthed could not have less age than four or seven hundred years. What is remarkable, no warlike implements are found in this locality, from which it is inferred that they were a peaceable race, and were probably exterminated or driven away by the Indians. In one of the graves was found a beautiful little vase, which had been placed in the hand of the inmate at the time of the burial. Upon this little bit of earthenware was the model of a diminutive animal. The care which this people took of their dead shows a high degree of humanity. We learn that other investigations in this section are to be made ere long. The field is certainly a rich one for the antiquarian.

Horrible Murder.

The atrocity of the Cornick murder in New Jersey has been surpassed by a horrible affair at the market town of Alton, in Hampshire, England. On the afternoon of the 24th of August, some children were playing in a meadow just outside the town, when a strange man beckoned to one of them, a child of eight years, named Fanny Adams, and coaxed her by a present of a half penny, to go with him into a neighboring hop-garden. She was never seen again alive. The same evening a laborer going home from work found in the hop-garden a disevered head resting upon two hop-poles at the foot of a hedge. He ran with it to the cottage of the Adams family, and it was immediately recognized as the head of the missing girl. The whole population now turned out to search the neighboring fields. A leg and foot were found in one place, a forearm in another; a hand, severed from the wrist, a foot cut off at the ankle, the mutilated trunk, full of stabs and gashes, a part of an arm, the heart and intestines, and the tattered remnants of the clothes, were picked up scattered over long distances. The eyes had been gouged out, the ears cut off, and the flesh of the legs and thighs ripped open to the bone. The young man named Baker—a fellow of indifferent character—was arrested on suspicion, and traces of blood were found on his clothes, while in his diary was this entry, in a bold and unfaltering hand: "Saturday, August 24, killed a young girl; fine and hot." A coroner's jury found him guilty, and he was held for trial. So the case rests. Motives for the crime can only be conjectured, and the shockingly mutilated state of the remains makes it impossible to ascertain what degree of violence may have preceded the murder. The circumstantial evidence against the prisoner seems strong. The chief point in his favor is the difficulty of imagining how any body but a raving maniac—and he is certainly not that—could commit such a frightful butchery.

ON the 18th of August last, Annie E. Richards, four years of age, daughter of Launcelot Richards, of Philadelphia, died suddenly under peculiar circumstances. It is alleged that certain neighbors of the Richards had frequently threatened them in consequence of quarrels, and but a day before the death of Annie the child came to her father and said: "———says she is going to kill mamma; what does she mean?" The family could not give any information, but they noticed that for several days cakes had been thrown into the yard, but as they had invariably been taken and thrown into the street no harm occurred. On the 18th of August Annie found a peach in the yard and took two bites of it. She was immediately taken sick, and in a few hours was dead. A post mortem disclosed the fact that there was strychnine in the stomach. Upon this the parties accused were arrested, and a jury summoned by the coroner to investigate the case.

REGISTRATION NOT TO BE RE OPENED.

The Intelligencer contradicts, by authority of the President, the story that orders will be issued for the re-opening of registration in the Southern States.

COTTON REGULATIONS.

The revised cotton regulations concerning the removal, weighing and marking of cotton have been approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, and will be issued next week. Transportation bonds are abolished and bills of lading substituted. The use of metallic tags for marking bales is imperatively required. The modifications in the former regulations are made to facilitate the movement of cotton and insure the collection of the revenue thereon.

THE ASSASSIN BOOTH'S TRUNK.

The War Department declined to allow the trunk of Wilkes Booth, which has been detained at the National Hotel since the assassination of Lincoln, to be delivered to Edwin Booth, who requested it of the proprietor of the hotel, in order that the family might examine the dead actor's effects.

FREEDMEN'S BUREAU RETRENCHMENT.

The following order has been issued by General Grant. District Commanders will co-operate with the Commissioners of the Freedmen's Bureau in reducing the number of employees and volunteers still retained in the service, by giving details of officers and enlisted men of the army, to take their places, where it can be done without manifest detriment to the service.

Discovery of Large Whiskey Frauds —Prominent Dealers Implicated.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

BOSTON, September 14.—The Internal Revenue Inspectors have seized in different parts of the city one hundred and seventy barrels of alcohol. The seizure was made in consequence of the reception of information that certain parties in Buffalo have been shipping spirits eighty per cent above proof to this city, with directions to have them boarded in the third district. Upon their arrival here, instead of being put in bond, they were scattered through the city in small quantities on different carriers, thereby avoiding the Collector, Assessor and Inspector. Having been returned to the Buffalo shippers, for the purpose of satisfying the officials there, it is stated that three hundred and fifty barrels are known to have thus been surreptitiously stored in Boston, and the officers are searching for the remainder. Prominent liquor dealers are implicated.

POSTAL TREATY ARRANGED.

BERLIN, September 13—Evening.—The negotiations pending the past two weeks between Mr. Kasson, on the part of the United States, and the Prussian Government, relative to a postal treaty between the two countries, have been completed. An arrangement, having for its object the reduction of the present postage rates, similar in general features to the treaty recently completed with Great Britain, was interchangably signed, but the time when it goes into effect is not made public. Among the features of the new treaty are the reduction of postage fully one-third, when mails are dispatched between the United States and any of the German ports direct, and a reduction of one-half when the mails are carried by way of Great Britain.

EMPEROR AND EMPRESS OF THE FRENCH INVITED TO VISIT GERMANY.

BERLIN, September 14.—The King of Prussia has sent an autograph letter to the Emperor and Empress of the French, inviting them to meet him and other sovereigns of the North German States at some city in Germany hereafter to be designated.

FROM CINCINNATI.

Large Fire—Five Warehouses and Five of Contents Destroyed—Loss $400,000.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

CINCINNATI, September 15.—A fire broke out last night in the block of warehouses, corner of Sixth and Baymiller streets, owned by W. B. Moore & Co., five of which were completely destroyed. The total loss will probably reach four hundred thousand dollars. The principal losers are: Sprees & Co., commission and storage warehouse, $50,000; the Kentucky Tobacco Works owned by S. S. Newman, which contained a large stock of tobacco and grain, deposited on storage, $50,000; Elmer's stove store, $20,000; George Leitigh's wooden warehouse, containing a large quantity of whisky, $35,000; U. S. Customs warehouse, $25,000; N. Fowler, & Co's rectifying establishment, with about eight hundred barrels of whisky, $12,000; W. B. Moore & Co.'s lime store, $6,000; Wessel, Moore & Co., Fox, Thomas & Co., and other parties in the block lesser losers, in the amount of $15,000. Henry Tibbets & Sons's flour and commission store, corner of Hammond and Hanley streets, was partially burned; loss $12,000. Mr. Moore's loss on buildings will reach $100,000, which is fully covered by insurance. Fowler & Co. are insured for $10,000. The other losers have very little insurance.

A row of frame tenement houses adjoining was also destroyed; loss about $7,000; no insurance.

Three firemen were severely injured by falling walls.

FROM THE PACIFIC.

Corn Exchange in San Francisco to be Made Permanent—Continued Decline in Mining Stocks—Mineral Resources of the Pacific States and Territories.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 14.—Arrived The Pacific mail steamer Constitution, from Panama, with passengers and the mail. She left New York on the twenty-first of August.

The experimental Corn Exchange works well, and will be made permanent.

The decline in mining shares still continues. Hale and Norcross, lately quoted at $30.00, is down to $13.00.

J. Ross Brown's second report on the mineral resources of the Pacific States and Territories will be completed this month. It embraces the most comprehensive and accurate exhibit ever made. It gives the product of gold this year at seventy millions. Nevada silver, nineteen millions.

Local Tenders are unchanged.

Sailed: Pandora, for Hong Kong, and Premier, for Liverpool.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 14.—The steamship Colorado, from Hong Kong, arrived this morning, bringing three hundred and fifty passengers. Yokohoma dates are to August 23d.

The Japanese authorities had arrested sixty-three native Christians.

An American and two Englishmen were murdered by Japanese at Nagonski. A French man-of-war had gone there to investigate affairs.

The markets were very dull.

Ordered into Quarantine.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

FORTRESS MONROE, September 15.—The double-ender Tempest, from Key West, arrived to-day. Dr. Cooper, quarantine officer, found two cases of yellow fever on board, and ordered her into quarantine.

Express Robber Arrested.

RICHMOND, September 14.—Abner Marks, charged with robbing the Adams Express Company, in Tennessee, about one year ago, of $31,000, was arrested to-day.

FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW YORK, September 15.—Special correspondence of the Herald from Rio Janeiro, to August 8th, reports a disastrous result to the expedition of the allied forces, fitted out at San Paulo, to march to the District of Provincia, Malta Grosso, to drive out the Paraguayans. The expedition was obliged to retire after advancing far into the Paraguayan territory. It was harrassed for twenty days by the enemy, and the cholera also broke out, carrying off the principal officers and a large number of men. The Brazilians had not succeeded in making any material advance. The sanitary condition of the main army was reported good. The Brazilians were employing balloons for reconnoitering, and were said to have obtained important information of the enemy's movements by that means.

On July 27th another large fire broke out in some Government buildings at Rio Janeiro, entirely destroying them. All the papers of the Treasury were burned, together with many other public documents. The fire was supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

FROM ST. LOUIS.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14.—The steam fire department of this city had their tenth anniversary parade to-day and made a fine show.

After the parade there was a grand inspection at Lindell Market Place. The Department now embraces eighty-eight men, sixty-eight horses, ten engines, ten carriages carrying sixteen hundred feet of hose each, two hook and ladder trucks and two fuel carts.

FROM NEW ORLEANS.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW ORLEANS, September 14.—Gen. Frank Wheaton, commanding this point, was yesterday attacked with yellow fever last evening.

The number of deaths for the twenty-four hours ending this morning were forty.

Gen. Sickles Serenaded—Declines to Speak of Political Matters.

NEW YORK, September 14.—A serenade was given to General Sickles, at the Brevoort House, last night, by the Excelsior Brigade and other organizations. He responded to the compliment by a speech of some length, in which he declined to discuss the subject of political issues, but said he obeyed every order he received, and attempted to exercise authority according to the intent and meaning of the laws.

Gun Powder Explosion—Boys Injured.

BUFFALO, September 15.—Three boys were injured this morning by the explosion of a glass bottle containing gunpowder. One of them, Wm. Livingstone, is still alive. The Shiek of Klefwa informed the officers of the Highflyer that that was the case, although many of the Doctor's followers had been killed in a fight with the natives.

The "Gray Reserves," of Philadelphia, have accepted a special invitation to be present at the ceremonies at Antietam to-morrow. The Philadelphia American says that orders have been issued to assemble at the armory at half-past five o'clock on Sunday evening, so as to get through in good time. The Pennsylvania Railroad has generously agreed to transport the regiment free of charge, and arrangements have been made to convey it through to the field. The command will march fully equipped and provided.

—A few Sundays since there passed down the river, at La Crosse, the corpse of a young girl named Charlotte M. Reynolds, whose history was a sad one. She died at St. Paul, Minn., and was taken below for interment. She was consumptive—came from the vicinity of Trenton, New Jersey, where she was last winter ruined by an editor named Jay, who gave her money to leave the country. She died in child-bed, a broken hearted wreck, cared for by an aunt and cousin, cursing the smooth-tongued villain who was the cause of her ruin and death.

GENERAL CATHOLIC COUNCIL.

The cable telegraph announced on Saturday that the Pope had resolved to call together a General Council of the Catholic Church, and had named a congregation of seven Cardinals to whom he had entrusted the duty of arranging the preliminaries. It is reasonable to conjecture that this important movement is an outgrowth of the informal assemblage of church dignitaries which occurred at Rome early the past summer.

A General Council is the highest authority known in the Catholic Church. It has jurisdiction over all questions of faith, rites and discipline. The first eight General Councils were convoked by the Roman Emperors, as CONSTANTINE, THEODOSIUS and JUSTINIAN. This was because the Church did not then extend beyond the limits of the empire, and because of the dominating relationship sustained by those Emperors to the Church. The first of these councils was held at Nice in the fourth century, and was presided over not by the Pope, but by the Emperor CONSTANTINE. It was this Council that framed what is known as the Nicean creed, and condemned ARIUS and EUSEBIUS for heresy. After the extension of the Church beyond the Roman boundaries it became the rule for the Pope to preside at the meetings of Councils, either in person or by legates. If we may trust GIBBON—who is quoted by both sides as the highest authority whenever his statements or verifications answer the immediate purpose—some of these Councils were not only excited and disorderly, but tumultuary and murderous. Indeed, GIBBON's affirmations in this particular, rest upon an impregnable basis of facts, and are corroborated by various indisputable witnesses, and in almost all ways.

The last General Council was that held at Trent in 1543, to condemn the doctrines of the Reformers, LUTHER, ZUINGLIUS, CALVIN and others. In the records this is styled the twentieth Council, though some of the convocations included to make up the number, do not merit the dignity thus assigned to them.

In the three centuries and nearly a quarter which have elapsed since the Council of Trent was held, vast changes have been wrought in the structure of European society. The invention of printing; the consequent revival of learning, and the diffusion of education, have remodeled social life, diversified employments, quickened enterprise, begotten a love of liberty, and constrained the introduction of numerous ameliorations of incalculable value. America, then but recently discovered and of no particular importance in the grand swing and march of the nations, has arisen with unprecedented rapidity in population, wealth and power. In the Northern portion of this continent especially ideas of the most absolute personal liberty compatible with order and progress, were planted at the beginning, and have matured into a new system of government which embodies and reflects the natural authority of the people and their impatience of restraints other than those imposed by their sense of right and their conceptions of a beneficent expediency. The steam-ship, the locomotive engine, and the magnetic telegraph, the ripest fruits of these later days, and the best indications and emblems of modern civilization, have drawn all nations together, multiplied their intercourse, corrected many of the errors resulting from isolation, enlarged their freedom, and purified their aspirations. The world is not what it was; and the shadow on its dial cannot be made to go backward.

The new repulse is felt by all, but not in equal degrees. One race is in advance of all the rest. One nation outruns another, just as one individual, by superior mental endowments and by healthier spiritual instincts, outstrips his fellows and becomes a leader to many. Doubtless there are those who think not well of all the bustle and stir, effervescence and commotion, sloughing off of effete parts and growth of new ones, which have characterized the last three hundred years. That some things have come to pass which are to be deplored, cannot reasonably be disputed; but on the whole no other three centuries—nay, no other six—are at all comparable to these in special improvements or in general progress.

They take a narrow and mistaken view who imagine that Catholics have not participated in this immense movement as well as Protestants. All ecclesiastical organizations are essentially conservative, in all nations, and under all forms of belief. Nor is this a blemish, but an excellence, except when the tendency is unduly encouraged, and for the purpose of prodncing or continuing the reign of night when the day ought to have the supremacy. Of all the Christian churches the Catholic is the most conservative, and for the plain reason that it is catholic or universal. Extending through all the nations, in all the ages, it has contracted alloys from each. If it has advantages over lesser communions in consequence of its universality, it has an infelicity likewise. As the ocean receives all the rivers of the earth, with their various impurities, so the Catholic church necessarily acquires a taint from each of the nations over which she exercises sway. This is one prime reason for her comparative immobility; the machine is so large and encounters so much friction in its different parts that it does not yield readily to the special influence prevailing in particular quarters. It represents the average civilization and advancement of the world, rather than the progress made in narrow limits by favored communities.

For these reasons they calculate erroneously who predict that a new Council will revolutionize the Church. Many of the Councils have, indeed, left an indelible mark in history; putting some doctrine or usage under the ban, or else imparting thereto an authority not lightly to be resisted. The Council now determined upon can hardly fail of becoming a most conspicuous landmark in history. It will be compelled either to confront or ignore all the important ideas evolved and all the consequential events wrought out in Christendom from the dawn of the Great Reformation up to the present time. Whichever of these courses it may take, its action will be equally significant.

FRIENDS of Hon. James F. Wilson at Washington, state that he has written a letter in which he says that Congress must impeach Johnson at the next session. If this is correct, then the supporters of impeachment have a majority of the Judiciary Committee.

PLANETELLES.

The instrument which is represented by the name above, exhibits the relative yearly, and daily motions of all the primary planets and the various motions of all of the satellites that revolve around them. In this instrument the inventor, Prof. J. DAVIS, of the Western University, has substituted wheels for mathematics, and makes clear to the eye what figures prove to the reason. The sun is made to revolve on his axis and by the relative yearly and daily motions of all of the primary planets and their satellites all of the phenomena, as in nature, are illustrated. By the use of this instrument a more definite and correct knowledge of the solar system can be obtained in months in any other way.

Three sizes of this instrument will be manufactured, adapted to various grades of schools. In connection with these instruments the Professor is publishing two works on astronomy—one a reader and text book for common schools, and the other for academies and seminaries. With the use of these facilities the science of astronomy is more level to the comprehension of the youthful mind.

PENNSYLVANIA NOMINATIONS.

THE REPUBLICANS of Bradford have nominated James H. Webb and J. F. Chamberlin for Assembly. Those of Tioga county have nominated B. B. Strang.

The Republicans of Chester, Delaware and Montgomery counties have fully agreed upon Charles H. Stinston as their candidate for State Senator.

While Mr. M. B. Lowry has the Republican nomination for State Senator in the Erie and Crawford district, considerable soreness evidently exists towards him in both counties.

The Republicans of the Luzerne and Susquehanna district have nominated Mr. W. W. Ketchum for Congress, in opposition to Mr. George W. Woodward. This nominee is widely known throughout the State as a gentleman of sterling common sense, much experience in dealing with public questions, and unquestionable integrity. He is a native of Connecticut, but has been long settled in the Wyoming Valley. Mr. Woodward is only one remove from being a New Englander. His parents were from that section.

THE Republicans of Berks county have nominated Col. Wm. G. Trexler for Senator, and A. K. Stauffer, Ezekiel Beard, and Daniel Yoder for Representatives.

THE Republicans of Luzerne have nominated Michael Gilroy, Morris Hughes and George Fortner for Assembly.

THE Democrats of Northumberland county have nominated Wm. H. Kase for Assembly.

THE Republicans of Wyoming county have nominated Zibi Lott for Assembly.

THE PENNSYLVANIA ELECTION.

The Republicans of the entire country are watching with deep interest the campaign in Pennsylvania, and confidently look forward for a brilliant victory at the ballot box in October next. That able journal, the Washington Chronicle, thus discourses on the importance of our forthcoming election, and the worthiness of our candidate for the Supreme Bench, Hon. H. W. WILLIAMS. It says:

"Although the only office of general importance to be filled in the coming election in Pennsylvania is that of a Judge of the Supreme Court of the State, it must be inferred by the friends of the Republic there that that election is without interest to the nation. Far from it. In view of the peculiar dangers which stare us in the face, there has never been a more important or it teresting election. We sincerely believe that the President of the United States has, with the advice and by the counsel of wicked men, marked out for himself an evil course, which he intends to pursue; that he has, in fact, already entered upon it; that he is even trying to save such smarts of conscience as he may be supposed to feel in following this path by whispering to himself that his official oath does not bind him to the execution of any law except it be "pursuant" to the Constitution, of which "pursuance" he is the self constituted judge. If the madness of the Republicans of California in willingly throwing away their power and prestige in that State has been taken by him as an innovation to pursue that course of sin, what, oh! what would be the thunder voice of the Keystone State, if she, too, should fall away in this dread crisis of the nation! Let not the Republican party of Pennsylvania be deceived. Let us all look the fact in the face, that if that great State shall give a majority for sham Democracy in the October election, she will give her vote to a President dictated by the rebellion in 1868, for it will be taken as an endorsement of the President's policy, and stimulate him to such violence that the whole State will be made, like the fabled car of Dionysius, a whispering gallery for Executive spies. Throughout all her mountains and valleys such office holders only will be disseminated as will act as obedient satraps, and only such as subscribe to his distorted "proclamations" and mouth his maudlin shibboleths can exist. A majority vote for Mr. Sharswood will be as much the voice of the State as though there were a hundred officers to be chosen. Let not the Republican Union party, who have made the glory of the State immortal, who from their homes and firesides gave a quarter million willing, brave souls to the bloody baptism of the patriot war, look back now, even for a moment, toward the City of Destruction from which they helped to rescue the Government bequeathed us by our fathers.

The spite of all the rebels is now concentrated in one breast. Rebellion no longer rears its bloody crest on the battle field, but in the Executive council, and it must be met and crushed there by the ballot-box.

Happily for our cause, our friends in Pennsylvania have a noble standard-bearer in the conflict. Hon. Henry W. Williams has been long an ornament to the bar and the bench of the city of Pittsburgh, and the county of which it is the centre. For more than a quarter of a century he has in that moral, industrious, and patriotic community, which is the pride of Pennsylvania, and which also gave Edwin M. Stanton to the nation, illustrated in his life all the virtues of the Christian and the patriot. There was never a doubt as to his position on the great questions of the war. There stands on the record no decision of his as a Judge, and no action of his as a citizen, which can be possibly construed into a discouragement or an obstruction to our holy war against slavery and for the nation's life. His learning will lend a lustre to the bench to which we hope to see him elevated; his experience as judge of a district court for so many years will inspire confidence in the community at large; his whole life is a guarantee of unsullied purity and devotion to the side of justice.

Work then, friends of the great Keystone State, and of the Republic, for the man and for the great cause he worthily represents, lest after so many years of struggle and sacrifice you be found at last yielding to the enemy in the Cabinet what with fire and sword he was unable to wrest from you in the field.

C——.

AN act of the last session of the Pennsylvania Legislature authorizes the people of Pittsburgh, Allegheny, and a dozen suburban towns to vote on the question of consolidating them all into one city, under one corporate control, to be known as Pittsburgh. If the vote is in the affirmative, it will produce a city of one hundred and seventy thousand inhabitants, or almost as many as Cincinnati contains. This consolidation should take place, as it would promote the interests of all the parts, and raise Pittsburgh to a place in the first class of cities in Pennsylvania. At present she ranks below Milwaukee, Louisville, or Detroit, when in point of fact if all the population which properly belongs to Pittsburgh were embraced in one municipality, the "Iron City" would be larger than all three of them.—Chicago Tribune.

OVER twenty thousand destitute Cretans, mostly women and children, have been removed from the Island of Candia and sent to Greece. For their aid the people of Athens, Syria and all the other Grecian cities, have become huge relief committees, and assistance is also sent from England and France and the United States. The removal of these destitute people from the island enables the able-bodied males to fight their Turkish oppressors with renewed vigor; for they know that not only are their families in a place of safety, but the food and other supplies they would have needed are now saved for the necessities of the men in the field.

Wendell Phillips and a Southern Woman.

One day, during the war he spoke before the Lyceum at Gloucester, and returning home by the cars the next morning, fell in with a lady who had got upon the train at a way station. She was a Southern refugee, who had been suddenly reduced from affluence to poverty, and she was supporting herself and fatherless children by giving an occasional lecture before a country audience. It was a hard struggle, for the field was full, and she was almost unknown and friendless, but with a brave heart she worked on, never asking a dollar of aid from any society or individual. Mr. Phillips saw her get upon the car, and asked her to take a seat beside him. It was a winter day, and she was thinly clad, shivering from the exposure of a long ride in the open air of the cold morning. Observing this, Mr. Phillips asked: "Where did you speak last night?"

She told him it was a town about ten miles distant from the railway.

"And—I wouldn't be impertinent—how much did they pay you?"

"Five dollars and the fare to and from Boston."

"Five dollars!" he exclaimed, "why, I always get fifty or a hundred, and your lecture must be worth more than mine—you can give them facts, I only opinions!"

"Small as it is I am very glad to get it, Mr. Phillips," answered the lady. "I would talk at that rate every night during the winter."

He sat a moment in silence; then he put his hand into his pocket, drew out a roll of bank notes and said, in a hesitating way, "I don't want to give offence, but you know I preach that a woman is entitled to the same pay as a man, if she does the same work. Now, my price is fifty or a hundred dollars, and if you will let me divide it with you I shall not have any more than you, and the thing will be even." The lady at first refused, but after a little gentle urging, she put the bank notes into her reticule. At the end of her journey she counted the roll and found that it contained fifty dollars—every dollar that he had received for his lecture at Gloucester. It may add point to this incident to say that the lady was, by marriage, a neice to Jefferson Davis. —N. Y. Evening Gazette.

A VIENNA PAPER reports that six Viennese pretty waiter girls have left that city for Paris to take the places of those who have exchanged their humble positions at the "Restauration de Dreher," in the grounds of the Great French Exhibition, for more exalted spheres. The following is the romantic fortune of five girls who waited upon the guests of the establishment at the opening of the Exhibition: One of them, a Viennese girl, is very soon to be married to a Spanish nobleman. A second, a Hungarian, has married one of the prominent men in the Faubourg St. Germain, and is now on her wedding tour. The handsome Polish girl, whose appearance created such a sensation, resides in a beautiful villa near Vichy by the side of a noble old Marquis, who has settled two hundred thousand francs on her. The fourth, a Tyrolese, has married one of our "merchant princes," who was charmed by her imposing figure. The last of this lucky quintette, also a Viennese, has just returned to her native city, the wife of a fortunate speculator, who recently made a couple of millions on 'Change.

IT IS PROPOSED in the New York Constitutional Convention to embody the following in the new Constitution: "No railroad shall hereafter be constructed or operated within any city or incorporated village until the consent of the local authorities be obtained, and at least the owners of one half the property on the line of the streets through which the road is to pass. A franchise, allowing such road to be opened, shall be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder, after three months' notice in the State paper, and the whole avails of such sale shall be given to the city or village." A clause like this in the Constitution of Pennsylvania would save some of our streets from the clandestine attacks made upon them periodically in the Legislature, would put a stop to one source of corruption at Harrisburg, and would carry money into the city treasury that should go there instead of into the treasuries of private incorporations.

THE new death's head robe is an English idea, the first having been ordered at Lyons by a British lord, who must have had a tremendous fit of spleen on him. It is a black ground worked over with white skulls in silver thread, and the bottom is bordered with big dropping tears! I thought the worst thing of the kind was the gentleman's neck scarf pin—a skull, with small electric eyes, which turn round and roll, and frighten every lady to death every time she looks the wearer of one in the face, for, however hard one may try, there is no looking a man in the face without noticing his necktie too. Garlands of tears may sound well, but look vastly miserable. The English lord offered ten thousand francs for the first made.

ARE YOU BILIOUS?

Multitudes of both sexes will answer this question in the affirmative; for, next to disorders of the stomach, liver complaints are perhaps the most prevalent of all internal diseases. Its usual symptoms are a yellowish tinge in the whites of the eyes, especially near the inner corners, an uneasy or slightly painful sensation in the right side, pain between the shoulder blades, etc. headache, dizziness, mental dullness, lack of appetite and irregularity of the bowels. Whoever recognizes this diagnosis as applying to his own condition, may be quite certain that more bile exists in his blood and less passes through its bowels than is expedient for his health, and his liver requires toning and regulating. One of the special uses of

is to meet just such exigencies as this. Its tonic principle rouses the liver from its torpor, and its aperient element gently relieves the intestinal canal of the accretions consequent upon an insufficient supply of nature's cathartic, the bile. Persons of bilious habit will find it the best safeguard against the attacks to which they are constitutionally predisposed, and should carefully avoid all the ordinary alcoholic stimulants.

CURE OF FISTULA.

DR. KEYSER: I write to thank you for your kindness and scientific management of my disease, for which I called to consult you some time in January last. You will remember that I had a complication of diseases which finally ended in a terrible fistula, which had been advised to "let alone" on account of a harassing cough, which it was feared might aston on my lungs. I knew that the popular mode of treating diseases like mine was by a cutting operation, which, if successful at all, would naturally throw the disease upon the lungs or some other vital organ, on account of the suddenness of the cure and the immediate check to a discharge which I was constrained to believe was a salutary provision of Nature to get rid of some morbid condition in the system. I feel perfectly satisfied that your method of treatment, purifying to the system, and local applications to the fistulous part, must cure, if anything could, without exiting, which I find it did, and I am happy to report myself well in every particular, with sounder and better health than I have had for years. I would also add that the applications you made were almost painless, and have left me a new man, with all the energies and vigor of restored health.

Yours, gratefully,

Dr. Keyser's consultation rooms are No. 120 Penn street, from 9 A. M. until 4 p. m.

The Pittsburgh Gazette

LETTER FROM MONTREAL.

(Special Correspondence Pittsburgh Gazette.)

MONTREAL, September 10, 1867.

DEAR GAZETTE: As when I left home, I expected to proceed no further than the Great Cataract, you will be surprised to see that I date from this beautiful commercial metropolis of the new Dominion. We reached Niagara after thirteen hours travel from Pittsburgh, where very comfortable apartments had been reserved for us at the Cataract House, and we expected to remain a few days and return home, loitering a day or two among friends at Erie. Having visited the Falls several times before, we were quickly reassured of its immortal identity and indescribable magnificence. Over the vast cleft the inland seas of America were pouring their floods, while, as ever, the rapids above were the "training of mighty waters," and the abysm below was no less ineffably awful than when we first stood above it thirty years ago, finding it now, as then, impossible to comprehend its depths or to estimate the forces of nature here displayed. We decided to wait this chief among wonders, and follow its floods towards their ultimate receptacle, and so took rail, seven miles, to Lewiston, the head of navigation, below the falls, where we took passage on the steamer Cataract and descended the remaining seven miles of the Niagara, where the river, with Fort George on the British and Fort Niagara on the American side at its mouth, is at last in Lake Ontario. From this point, coasting along, keeping the American shore in sight, touching at Charlotte and Rochester, thence across to Ogdensburg, down the St. Lawrence to Ogdensburg, were we were transferred to a smaller steamer, the Lord Elgin, on which we were to complete the voyage to this city. A smaller boat is taken because the larger ones cannot pass through the locks in the short canals by which in the ascending navigation the numerous rapids are avoided. So at Ogdensburg we took the Lord Elgin, a boat of size conformable to the capacity of the parenthetical canals, but staunch enough to encounter the dashing and surging of the turbulent rapids through which she is about to descend. This part of our trip was surpassingly interesting and exciting. The foaming and angry waters was sometimes fearful, and we would advise all persons before thinking their first trip down the St. Lawrence to make restitution if they have done any wrong, and come to these scenes with clear consciences, and the most fascinating all their nerves that are in the least out of order at home. Thus prepared they will find it one of the most exciting and fascinating trips on the Continent.

The river broad, widening at times to the proportion of a Lake; the islands are numberless and are like gems of emerald set in the placid stream, fringed with the pearly spray of the rivers and rushing floods. We passed safely through the "Long Sault," "Cedars," "Cotta De Lac" and other rapids, arriving at La Chine so late that the Captain decided not to run the rapids just immediately below, but descend to the city through the Canal. Not liking this slow alternative, we took the cars and in a few minutes were nicely bestowed in St. Lawrence Hall, in rooms previously secured for us by a friend who expected us.

To this same friend, who is the highest American official resident in the new "Dominion," we are indebted for great courtesy and many kind offices since we came to this city. It was a great relief in a strange country and city to find a friend capable and willing to explain all mysteries, and show all places and things which a tourist delights to see and learn on a first visit to a foreign city. Last Sunday was improved by attending Divine service at the English Cathedral in the morning and the Church of the Jesuits in the evening. During the day we visited the Cathedral of Notre Dame, said to be the largest on the Continents. I would like to describe these and numerous other public edifices, for truly, Montreal is remarkable, but fear I could not do justice to the subject and know you have not space for it.

Montreal is one of the best built cities I ever saw. Nearly all the public and the better class of private buildings are of stone material, of which enough lies near at access to build all the cities of the earth and the pyramids of the Nile in addition. On the same island with the city is "Montreal Mountain," which makes a beautiful feature in the panorama of the city. At its base and on its lower slopes, half concealed by the abounding relics of the primitive forests, are to be found many elegant suburban residences of wealthy citizens. Some of them are among the finest I have ever seen. A first rate macadamized road surrounds and crosses the mountain. This mountain, the La Chien Rapids, and the "Victoria Bridge," are the chief contributions of Nature and of Science to the immediate surroundings of the city. The mountain, although a mere whelp of our Alleghenies, or of the Adirondacks, seen in the distance from the crest of this young one, is nevertheless large enough for city purposes. It affords the Montrealites a proximate look out from which the extent of vision is exhausted in the extent and beauty of the view. The entire city, with all her spires and domes, her docks and shipping, with the Victoria Bridge, are in the foreground, while in the distance can be traced the meanderings of the mighty river—the crests or spurs of many mountains, including the "Adirondacks," the "Green" and the "White," and other ranges, and the vast valley which the great river bisects and fertilizes. It would be difficult to find elsewhere a picture more extensive in outline or more diversified, picturesque and beautiful in detail, and I leave the subject as beyond the power of my pen or pencil.

This evening I will set my face homeward, expecting to-morrow to revel in the charms of Lake Champlain. As progress to-day or two at Erie, I may write thence something about Rouser Point, Plattsburg, Ticonderoga and other points of interest in the region through which I am about to pass. If however, I dont write, I will see you next week and tell you the rest. K.

Railroad Accident

An accident occurred on the Pittsburgh Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, Saturday, by which the express train, due here at 10:40 A. M., was delayed several hours. A freight train coming East was endeavoring to get on the siding about a half mile west of Salem, Ohio, and had succeeded in getting all except the last car on, when the express came up at full speed and ran into it, and throwing the engine, tender and baggage car of the express train off the track. The car demolished was a caboose, and in it were four persons sleeping, who, strange to say, escaped without injury. Mr. Reinhart Rush, a butcher, of Allegheny city, was one of the gentlemen in the car at the time. He was severely cut and bruised about the head and body, but his injuries are not of a serious nature. A Mr. Graham, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, was also severely but not dangerously injured. The others escaped with very slight injury. Mr. James Bryant, the engineer, and the fireman, both jumped from the engine just before the collision, and were only slightly injured.

Major F. Scott was conductor on the Express. No blame attaches to the employees on the Express train, as it was running on time and no signals were given them of the situation of the other train, which was hidden from the view of the approaching train by a curve in the road at that point.

Seriously Injured.

A gentleman while passing along Second street, Saturday evening, was seriously injured by a fall, caused by striking his foot against a gas pipe, at No. 173, (which projects several inches above the sidewalk,) and falling with his face on the water box, which also projects above the pavement. A severe cut in his cheek, and he was insensible for several minutes, but was finally resuscitated and taken to his residence. These pipes are found projecting above the pavements in all parts of the city. Many brick sidewalks are in use, and scarcely an evening passes that some one is not more or less injured by falling over them. This is only one of the many disadvantages of brick sidewalks, and until they are abolished we suppose the citizens will have to put up with it. Tin might do, and should be remedied in some way at once, and we call the attention of the authorities to it. The adoption of stone sidewalks would be an effectual remedy, but that is not likely to take place so long as there is clay in the county of which to make brick, and about that time we will have the Nicolson pavement. Think of it! In three or four hundred thousand years from this date Pittsburgh will have no brick sidewalks and cobble stone pavements. We will have a model city then. Be patient.

Serious Accident.

Mr. Bridenthall, an old and well-known citizen of Allegheny City, met with a serious accident on Saturday. Mr. B. had got aboard of a car on the Penn street Passenger Railway to visit his son-in-law, Mr. William Bingham, at Lawrenceville, and in crossing Ewalt street, attempted to get off the car while it was in motion, when he was thrown to the ground with so much force as to fracture his right thigh bone. Doctors Childs and Cowley were summoned and reduced the fracture, and the unfortunate man is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances. Mr. B. is about eighty years of age, and it is seldom, if ever, that persons of his age recover entirely from such injuries. He was taken to his residence in Allegheny, and yesterday we were informed that he was doing very well.

Common Pleas Court.

Jury trials commence in this Court today, with Judge Sterrett on the Bench. Following are the cases set down for trial today:

2. Honfrey vs. Allegheny Rail Road.

9. McNeill, Dean & Co., vs. J. Schaub, et al.
11. Girard vs. Kumpf.
13. McGraw, vs. McDermott's administrators.
14. Benkendorf vs. Musgrave.
15. Shafer vs. Hoag.
16. Carr vs. owners of the steamboat Cosgrave.
17. Kamala et. ux. vs. McCaffrey et ux.

Wayne County Items.

The Honesdale Republic contains the following:

DENB.—The brick work on the tower of the new Presbyterian Church, in this borough, is now completed. It is seventy-two feet from the ground. In addition to this there is to be about ninety feet of wood work, making it, by far, the highest steeple in that section.

ARREST.—A boatman was arrested in this borough, on Tuesday, on suspicion of being concerned in a murder at Carbondale, last spring, and also of being the incendiary who caused so many fires in that city during the last few months. He was taken over and lodged in jail Tuesday night.

Boy Drowned—Coroner's Inquest.

William Lewis Lane, a colored boy, about eleven years of age, who formerly resided with his uncle at Butcher's Run, came to this city about two weeks since and obtained employment of Mrs. Clark, on Hand street. On Saturday evening he went to the river to bathe and was drowned. He was noticed sitting on a flat boat under the Hand street bridge, with his feet hanging in the water, from whence he fell forward into the river, and was drowned before assistance could reach him. The body was recovered about ten o'clock yesterday morning, when Coroner Clawson was summoned and held an inquest, the jury rendering a verdict of accidental drowning.

Body Recovered.—The body of Aaron Hoer, the boy who fell from a barge in the Ohio river, at West Pittsburgh, on Thursday morning, was found Saturday evening near McKee's Rocks. Coroner Clawson was notified and summoned a jury to hold an inquest, who rendered a verdict of accidental death by drowning.

The Pittsburgh Gazette

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, September 14, 1867.

The New York stock quotations to-day, as received by Mr. P. R. Mertz, were as follows: Gold, 144½; Eighty-one bonds, 111¾; Five Twenties, 1862, 114¼; Five Twenties, 1864, 109¾; Five Twenties, 1865, 110¾; 5-20 Consols, 107¾; Seven Thirties, 106¾@106⅞; Ten Forties, 99½. Stocks—Erie Railroad, 69; Cleveland & Pittsburgh, 87¼; Chicago and Rock Island, 101¾; Chicago and Northwestern, 48¾; Chicago and Northwestern preferred, 69¾; Fort Wayne Railroad, 104½; Michigan Southern Railroad, 81¾; New York Central, 103; Reading, 103¾; Western Union Telegraph Co., 42¾; Ohio and Mississippi Certificates, 27¾; Mining shares—Corydon, 1,30; Gregory, 3,50; Quartz Hill, 1,70; Smith & Parsmalee, 6,25; Quicksilver, 27½. Merchants Union Express Co., 50.

Gold is decidedly lower; opening at 144¾, declining to 144¼, advancing to 144¾, and closing weak at 144¼. The decline is due to an advance of our bonds in Europe, the calm in Washington in political circles, but principally to the almost entire success of the ring in the gold room who sold out their gold bought at 140¾@145, at, or near, 148, and now can await the action of the bear party who are powerless for the present.

Bonds are tending downward, and with the advance of the interest on gold must inevitably go lower yet. Stocks are likewise dull and lower; none but regular operators in Wall street venture at present to either buy for investment nor go short for fear of being entrapped. The moment is not very favorable for any one not thoroughly versed with the stock business to venture in. The receipts of the leading Railroads are not as large as was expected, and the working expenses remain nearly the same.

Mining stocks are nearly unchanged, but before long all the worthless companies will be driven out of the market by more renumerating new companies with capital stock approximating the real value of the property, and being under a more economical management and better machinery to work the ores or quartz. Columbia (oil) is held at 108¾. Triumph at 2, to 2,10. United States, 3,75, and Beaneheon Run, 4,50. Some Central transportion stock changed hands at $62 per share.

—Financial writers of the New York press ascribe the recent advance in gold to two causes, as follows:

First, apprehensions of such usurpations on the part of Acting President as will bring him into open collision with Congress, with a chance of a renewal of civil war, which last misfortune we regard as improbable. Second, the continued absorption and hoarding of gold by the Secretary of the Treasury. With upwards of a hundred millions of coin accumulated in the vaults of the Treasury, where it lies idle and dormant, the scarcity of cash gold to pay duties on imports is being severely felt in mercantile circles. Bonds have not depreciated in value either in Europe or America, and the present reduction in the value of greenbacks can not be caused by the price of securities. If the Secretary of the Treasury would sell, say twenty millions of coin at the rate of one or two millions per day, the natural tendency on gold would cease, and the premium begin to decline, and not stop till it fell to 140, which is its present level as compared with the value of Five Twenties. Twenty millions of gold would realize to the Treasury about $28,800,000 of currency, of this sum, invested in Seven Thirties, would redeem and cancel nearly twenty seven millions of them, thereby saving $1,987,000 of interest per annum, besides giving back to commerce twenty millions of absorbed coin. The truth of the matter is, that the Secretary of the Treasury does not need to keep more than twenty-five millions of idle gold on hand. This amount would furnish him with all the working balance he can possibly need. He has no other use for gold than to pay interest on bonds as it falls due from month to month. He is in the regular receipt of ten to eighteen millions of coin per month, averaging over fifteen. When all the Seven Thirties are converted into gold-bearing bonds the interest will not exceed one hundred and twenty millions per annum, while the income of gold exceeds that sum by forty to sixty millions. And, as the demand for currency is reduced, the demand for gold will become less in proportion.—Chicago Tribune.

The same paper from which the above paragraph is taken, also remarks that "enough can be spared from the Treasury during the coming six or eight months to purchase one hundred millions of bonds, thereby reducing the demand for coin six millions, and requiring but one hundred and fourteen millions to pay the interest on all the 6-20's maturing for coin. It is high time the mercantile public began to speak out on this subject, and to make their voices and influence felt against the suicidal, destructive policy being pursued by the head of the Treasury Department.

—The New York Tribune of Friday says: The Treasury still hesitates to interpose, and by increasing the rate of its great to 7 per cent. give a severe check to gambling in gold and overtrading in all directions. The Secretary can effect this equally readily by selling 6-20 bonds moderately, and keeping the legal tenders gotten in payment. A drain of $20,000,000 of legal tenders to the South for cotton, or to Europe for grain, or into the Sub-Treasury for bonds, would correct the money market of New York, where alone capital has gone begging at 3 per cent. per annum.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, September 14, 1867.

CRUDE—The market has been somewhat excited and very unsettled throughout the past week, rendering the business unsatisfactory to both buyers and sellers. This was owing to the irregular reports from Europe, Antwerp varying from 1 to 2 francs almost every day, and until the foreign markets assume a more settled and tangible shape, we cannot expect anything else here. To-day there was but comparatively little done, and while the market appeared a little weak and very unsettled, prices in reality, have undergone no quotable change. Sales of 1500 bbls to be delivered between now and December 1st, seller's option, at 12. Spot oil was offered at 13, but there were no buyers at that price. For March and April, 1868, the last sales reported were at 13¾, and we presume that buyers could still be found at this figure. The latest advices from Oil City quote nominally at $3,75.

REFINED—The market for bonded oil was also unsettled to-day, and there was little or nothing done. At the opening, there was a firm feeling, but reports from Philadelphia giving rumors of Antwerp having declined to 46 francs, had a depressing influence, but subsequent cable dispatches were received here quoting at 52½ francs, which, to use a common phrase, "put the market upon its feet again." Prices have undergone little or no change, if we except a sale of a "line" for the last three months, 600 each, at 33¾c, which is a slight improvement. There was also a sale of 600 for September, at 32c. October, 31c. In the absence of sales, may be quoted at 32@33½c, while 32c may be considered the ruling price for all this month, buyer's option.

On the 15th of September, 1866, spot crude sold at 15@16½c, while bonded oil sold at 39c, on cars here; 44@44½c for October delivery in Philadelphia, and 44c for November. It will be seen that while the difference between rude now and this time last year, is very slight; the difference in refined is considerable.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, September 14, 1867.

The general markets have been considerably excited during the past week, and some of the leading articles, including Flour, Grain and Provisions, have advanced considerably. It is thought, however, that the "top" has been touched, and that a reaction and lower prices is near at hand. There is some reason for an advance in Corn, as the crop, this year, will doubtless be a light one, but for the other articles, there seems to be no good solid basis for the upward movement.

GRAIN—Wheat is firm and in limited demand; prime Penna. and Ohio Red may be quoted at $2,25@2,30. Oats scarce, firm and higher; sale of 2 cars, in bulk, to go east, at 60c, and we now quote at 62@65c, in store. Corn is in light supply and firm; sale of 100 bush Ear at $1,20—prime Shelled may be quoted at $1,23 @1,25. Barley is in good demand, and prices are well maintained; sale of 2000 bush, to arrive at $1,15, and 2000 at $1,18. Rye is firm but unchanged; sale of 400 bush, to arrive next week, at $1,25.

FLOUR—Is quiet but firm, with a fair local demand, and prices are well sustained but unchanged. We continue to quote at $10,00@10,50 for Spring Wheat; $11,00@11,50 for Winter Wheat, according to quality. Rye Flour is firm but unchanged—small sales in store, at $8.

PROVISIONS—Bacon is firm with regular jobbing sales at former prices—15 for Shoulders; 17c for Ribbed, and 18c for Clear Sides, and 22 @23c for Sugar Cured Hams. Lard is quoted firm at 14c for prime kettle rendered, as is also Mess Pork at $25.

BUTTER—Strictly prime fresh Butter is scarce and in demand, and may be fairly quoted at 28@30c. Ordinary is selling at 23@25c. No demand whatever for common packed.

GREEN APPLES—Continue very dull, with a good supply but unchanged. We quote at $2 @3 per bbl.

SEEDS—There is a good demand for Flaxseed at $2,50. Timothy Seed is selling in small lots at $3. No demand for Clover.

HAY—Is quiet and unchanged—sales from country wagons at $14@18 per ton.
